This weekend the girls enjoyed one of their favorite activities, ceramic painting! But before they could get their day started, they first sat down to a delicious brunch prepared by Ms. Celia. They feasted on avocado on sourdough bread with prosciutto, hard boiled eggs, cheese and corn served with fruit. After this tasty and filling meal, the girls got dressed and ready to go on the outing. The ceramic cafe is in the Plateau, so the girls made their way down to the metro station and over to the ceramic cafe. Once they arrived they got to choose their pieces from the many different designs available. They then had to choose their paint colours and how they were going to design and paint their pieces. The girls carefully and meticulously painted their ceramics, while chatting and ordering some snacks. Once they were done with their pieces, they handed them over to staff to be glazed and fired, and we are all excited to see how they come out! The girls then spent some time exploring the area and all the small stores and bakeries the Plateau has to offer. After a long afternoon out, we got back onto the metro and made our way back to the residence. The girls were met by the amazing smell of Ms. Celia preparing dinner, and they soon found themselves eating pork stir fry with eggplant and green beans served with rice. Once they were done eating, the girls put away their dishes and we quickly made our way down to the auditorium to watch this year's Final Production: Drinking Habits. The girls cheered for their classmates on stage and loved how funny and ridiculous the story was. The entire cast and crew of the Final Production did an amazing job and it was a joy to watch. Once the play ended, we came back upstairs to the residence and got ready for bed.

On Sunday morning, the girls woke up to the smell of Ms. Celia preparing another delicious brunch, and this time it was mini pancakes with bacon and lots of fruit. As soon as they finished eating, the girls put away their dishes and started on their Sunday routine of cleaning their rooms, but with the amazing Spring weather waiting for them, they didn't take too long and quickly finished up so they could head out into the backyard and enjoy the sunshine! The girls brought their homework outside and also engaged in some more relaxing activities. After a couple hours in the sun, the girls came back inside and relaxed for the afternoon. Some girls chose to go out into the city and run some errands, while others decided to stay in. It was soon time for dinner, and Ms. Celia had spent the afternoon cooking up a wonderful dinner of chicken stir fry with snow peas and red peppers served on egg noodles. As soon as the girls were done with their dinner, they cleared their dishes and got ready for study hall and to complete their homework for the coming week. They finished up their homework and got ready for bed.

We can't wait for next week!
